RE: Cease and Desist Demand for Defamatory Commentary

Dear Ms. Venturini,

We received your October 9, 2025, letter in response to our formal cease and desist demand. Your response confirms, rather than refutes, the factual and legal basis for our client's claims. It also included a "proposal" that, frankly, missed the mark in what we are requesting in remediation of the harm which your comments have caused my client and her business.

To be direct, what you have offered is a vague, blame-free, "mutual" statement, coupled with a request that my client issue letters on your behalf to third parties, all without any retraction or acknowledgement of your defamatory conduct. Let me be clear, my client has not made any misstatements regarding your character in a public forum, and therefore, this is not a negotiation. You have caused reputational and economic harm to my client by publicly accusing her of criminal behavior which objectively never occurred.

Your claim that PayPal flagged my client's legitimate payment as a "phishing scam" is entirely fabricated given the correspondence between you and my client which I have in my possession whereby you stated that you would only accept a certain form of payment. Likewise, your assertion that you have "no ties" to Oregon is directly contradicted by your own statement to the Oregon law firm involved, where you represented that you conduct all your business in Oregon. The claims available to my client would allow filing in Federal Court if necessary, so your involvement with Oregon is not a lynchpin to my client's recovery.

Your invocation of whistleblower laws is equally misplaced and mischaracterized given the objective facts of your communications. Defamation is not “protected reporting.” There was no wrongdoing to “report”, only your false narrative which you published in a public forum.

The only acceptable resolution remains exactly as was outlined in the original cease and desist demand; a full retraction of all defamatory statements through the same or similar channels they were made, removal of all defamatory posts, emails, and publications, and written confirmation of such retraction and removal.

This is your final opportunity to comply. You have ten (10) days from the date of receipt of this letter to fully retract your statements and provide written confirmation. If you fail to do, we will immediately initiate litigation against you for defamation, false light invasion of privacy, and intentional interference with economic relations. We will also seek punitive damages and attorney fees pursuant to ORS 20.105.

The record of your statements, your publications, and the resulting harm is extensive, corroborated, and well documented by multiple witnesses, including multiple third-party legal professionals. Your conduct has been malicious and must be rectified immediately.

This letter is not an invitation to continue debating your version of events. Either you retract and remove your defamatory statements within the deadline above, or you will be served with formal legal action.

Regards,
